Enjoy music by singer, songwriter, guitarist, and environmental educator Joe Reilly from Ann Arbor, MI. Reilly has used his songwriting skills as a method for teaching ecology and natural science to students throughout Michigan for more than five years. His songs encourage stewardship while teaching interdependence, animal classification, Michigan appreciation, natural history, the water cycle, and caring for forests and wildlife habitat. He engages students in performing and songwriting, challenging them to use their own creative voices to share what’s important to them about the Earth. Joe’s songs also communicate hope as they offer solutions to environmental challenges and suggest simple things people can do to help support healthy ecosystems.
