Teacher participants will:

- Investigate product manufacturing, building design, site design, transportation systems, renewable energy sources and food systems;
- Engage in lessons and gather resources to facilitate teaching your students about sustainability while meeting the Next Generation Science Standards;
- Be able to share STEM sustainability careers with students.

Instructors will include a variety of MTU faculty, community and teacher experts.

Register by Tuesday, June 2nd
Cost: $150 off campus
$300 on campus
2 graduate credits
*Travel Stipends for Detroit teachers
Course Credit & Requirements
Participants will earn 2 graduate credits (ED5640) from Michigan Technological University.

Course requirements:
◊ Complete pre-course readings and reflections.
◊ Participate fully in all parts of the Institute.
◊ Develop two lesson plans after the institute related to sustainable futures (using the rubric provided) and that meets applicable content expectations. Participants should plan to implement the unit during the 2015-16 school year. Due September 2, 2015.

Master of Applied Science Education
The credits earned from this institute can be applied to an 18 semester-hour planned course of study for teachers working towards their Professional Certificate or a Master of Science in Applied Science Education at Michigan Tech.

Cost: $150 off campus which includes 2 graduate credits, 5 lunches, field trips, and classroom supplies, or $400 on campus which also includes 5 nights lodging and meals. Cost has been reduced through the generous support of School of Forest Resources & Environmental Science faculty and a reduction in official MTU tuition (2014/15 Official Applied Science Education Graduate Resident and Non-Resident is $534.50 per credit).
